Mr. And Mrs. El Paso Find Nearly Everything They Need Is Made Here

It has often been said that the classified pages of a big daily newspaper contain more stories of human interest. Many tragedies are hidden, buried in paragraphs and buried in the folds of the paper. The advertisements displayed on this "Made in El Paso" page also tell a story—just a plain every day story of an everyday life. One walks across the street and does not dream of the romance and adventure in gathering and bringing to El Paso the asphalt with which the pavement he walks upon is made of. The El Paso Bitulithic company, a home industry, probably contracted for and built the pavement running along the lot where Mr. El Paso is going to build his home. He goes to Y. H. Ware, a well known local contractor, and takes the plan over with him. It is settled that a one-story brick bungalow will be built.

Where to get the brick is the problem, so he looks over this page and sees that the International Brick company can furnish him with brick made from clay found near home. The home is built, the plan is laid and the El Paso Gas company is brought in to furnish fuel for the gas stove purchased from the Davis Hardware and Furniture company which will also furnish the new householder with all of his household hardware and cooking utensils.

Before housekeeping can start, however, the dwelling will be painted inside and out by the Yelton Paint company. The paperhanging will also be done by this company. To drain the rain off the roof, gutter piping and down spouts must be bought and installed by the contractor. As the bungalow is being built on special plans all this material has to be made. No need to send away from El Paso; it can be made to order any design by the Hills-Sutton company, who also trade in all kinds of tanks and sheet metal.

To keep the house warm during the winter the Peeler-Dobie Stove and Foundry company will install furnaces and stoves that will keep Jack Frost and the north wind out of the outside. A sleeping porch is desired and is built on the outside where the sun shines early in the morning. Canvas curtains and porch screens are ordered. They can be obtained in all styles at the El Paso Tent and Awning company.

The time comes to move in; the furniture and fixtures are valuable and must have careful handling, so a phone call is made for Karl Fisher and he and his men get everything in place without a scratch or a scratch.

If you want to be lucky in your new home the first things to take in are a Bible, a bar of soap and a broom. The place to get the broom is the Glenn Broom company. Then a piano to sit on, and a good night's sleep is a luxury after a tiresome day of moving. Make it a restful one by dreaming on a mattress from the Clarke Mattress and Rug company, or they will remake your old one as good as new. This comes the time to fill the ice box. Of course, ice is the first requisite and the Consumers Ice company with the white wagon gives honest weight. A few cold bottles of ginger ale or lemonade from the Tri-State Beverage company will go to next to the ice. The El Paso Dairy company's wagon will bring the certified milk early in the morning or Tri-State Dairy will supply a brand of milk that is unexcelled by human hands from the time it leaves the cow until it gets to the consumer.

Good butter or excellent butter milk can be had fresh every day from the Golden Cow Butter Shop. This fills up the ice box for the time being and now the bread box must be filled with the staff of life. The nearest grocery will supply you with Supreme Bread baked in a sanitary way by the Gem Steam Baking company.

When Mr. El Paso moves he always finds some articles of wearing apparel that needs cleaning or he calls up the Wrights Cleaning works and they make his suit look so good that he decides to let them do the family laundry also. When new clothes are needed he has a suit made to order by the Queen Tailor Shop because they give prompt and satisfactory service. His oldest son goes to Swanson, the tailor, and his brother stands by Morehead's busy little tailor shop because he has been going there for years and always had a good fit.

The family footwear is looked over and all shoes in need of repair are sent to Pickel Brothers, who never use poor leather. A picture of the new home is worth while and the daughter goes to the J. F. Gandara Photo Supply company and buys a Kodak. She takes pictures of the house and all the members of the family. Mr. and Mrs. El Paso like to take a little trip across the river into Old Mexico once in awhile and Ende Earn makes them have photographs on their passports. They have the pictures taken and printed in an hour's time at Fred's

MISCELLANEOUS SERVICE
"IN THE CASE" Yes, Mr. El Paso, please stop at the Lander Lumber Company, get some roofing paper and then come out and fix our roof. We are afraid it is going to rain tonight and we cannot get a carpenter at this time. We did this job for a good customer and never regretted it. It is only one of the many things your transfer has to do. Whatever we do for you will be done cheerfully and carefully.
